At a recent event in New York City, Dr. Nancy Elliott, left, founder and director of the Montclair Breast Center on South Fullerton Ave., was selected as an ambassador to the National Breast Cancer Coalition in recognition of her pioneering efforts in women's health. Dr. Elliott is pictured with N.Y. Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton who attended the event. The NBCC is one of the country's top 25 organizations with the most influence on policies that affect health in the United States.
